Florence Chadwick's Day

Hi! A week-and-a-half of training and still no signs of Caddy. I won't be too disappointed if I don't run into Caddy before I try the swim because I have just about had my fill of denizens of the deep interfering with my swims and practise swims.

The only way I like to see fish is browned to a crisp and served with a side order of cole slaw.

I have already mentioned the time when three sharks were shot near me during my Catalina swim. Believe me, a person could swear off fish for life after an experience like that.

But you should have been around Catalina one day when I was having a practise swim. My brother, Dick, was the only person with me and he was rowing a small boat while I was swimming.

I had my head low to the water and couldn't see much. All of a sudden Dick started shouting and jumping up and down in the boat. I stopped swimming because I thought maybe his boat had sprung a leak.

Just as I stopped swimming, I felt this strange pull in the water, as if in a whirlpool. I think I set a new speed record getting over to the boat and just as Dick hauled me over the side, a great big whale surfaced, right where I had been swimming.

The whale slapped the water with his flukes, almost upsetting the boat, blew a great big cloud of vapor and slipped under the waves.

Right about then, I almost decided to go into the restaurant business.

The time I tried to swim, non-stop, from England to France and back to England, the citizens of the sea ganged up on me.

I made the coast of France and turned around for the return trip to England. I had covered about 2½ miles back when I ran into a school of little jelly-fish. There must have been 50-trillion of them, about two inches across and they stung worse than a hive of cranky bumble-bees. I was just covered with stings and welts and had to quit because of them.

If Caddy stays on his side of the Bay I'll stay on mine.

Third Mental Patient Caught; 2 Still at Large

LANGSTAFF, Ont. (CP)—Vincent Lauzon, 24, described by police as a dangerous escaped mental patient, was re-captured today at Schomberg in this district 20 miles north of Toronto. Police continued a hunt for two other mental patients who escaped with him Monday night from the Ontario hospital at Langstaff.

Lauzon, believed the leader of the group and the most dangerous of the trio, was taken into custody at a Schomberg gas station.

Still at large and sought in swampy bushland were Victor Robert, 19, also considered dangerous, and William Elsie, 20, reported to be a harmless epileptic.

Earlier two others who escaped after an attendant at the hospital was slugged with a cribbage board were picked up near the institution.

Brandon Floods Recede

Victory was in sight today for men holding the last remaining emergency dikes at Brandon, Man., after Assiniboine River reached its peak at 22 feet two inches. Officials predicted the river would flow at the same level for four or five days at the most, unless further heavy rains occur in the western part of the province. In one of the worst floods on record, all but one section of Brandon's emergency dike system had been flooded and most homes had their cellars inundated. Crest of the flood was only eight inches below the peak of the disastrous flood of 1948. Above, two residents are seen traveling the street by canoe. (CP Photo)

'Showdown' Talks Are Started With Premier Mendes-France

BY EDWARD M. KORRY

PARIS (UPI)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew to Paris today for dramatic showdown talks on Indo-China and the European army with French Premier Pierre Mendes-France.

Dulles arrived in Paris by plane at 1:55 p.m. (6:55 PDT). His arrival was accompanied by authoritative reports from London that the U.S. secretary of state will have Britain's full support on both Indo-China and the European Army plan.

Mendes-France, these sources said, sent a personal message to Dulles Monday, reaffirming his determination to achieve an honorable Indo-China settlement.

That assurance, they said, was what finally broke the United States' semi-boycott of the French premier's hasty-up peace campaign.

But both Britain and the United States remained wary of any move that could be interpreted as a sell-out.

SEVEN POINTS

Authoritative French sources said Mendes-France has agreed to seven general conditions which President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill have said are necessary for an "honorable" Indo-China peace.

The seven points insisted upon by the two western allies were not disclosed, but authoritative sources said they barred any Red takeover of Indo-China, kept open the possibility of an eventual peaceful unification of a democratic Viet Nam and demanded an effective international control system.

An informant said British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would stand with Dulles against the negotiation of a dishonorable peace in Indo-China.

It was learned authoritatively, too, that Britain and the United States have agreed to grant sovereignty to West Germany if France refuses to ratify the European army agreement.

Dulles planned to get down to business with Mendes-France after a dinner scheduled to follow his arrival.

Small Shops Act to Block Six-Day Week

VANCOUVER (CP)

— Legal action has been started here in an attempt to block the Wednesday opening of the city's department stores, scheduled for a six-day store operation.

A petition by a majority of operators in any retail class is required before stores can stay open Wednesdays.

The petition by department stores has been cleared by city hall officials, and a by-law amendment to give them, and four other store classifications, the six-day week is scheduled to become operative next week.

Vancouver Will Get Tough In Forcing Gas Safety Law

VANCOUVER (CP)

— The city of Vancouver had orders today to take drastic steps to enforce its gas safety by-law, designed to curb domestic gas poisonings, of which there have been 42 here so far this year.

Council Monday endorsed a by-law amendment giving city officials power to order the gas supply shut off from premises where property owners refuse to allow inspections or violate the gas safety regulations.

Nasser Calls Cabinet On U.K. Suez Proposal

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI)—Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser has called an extraordinary cabinet meeting for tonight to discuss Britain's new proposals for settling the Suez Canal zone dispute.

Informed sources said the latest British proposals for settlement of the dispute provide for the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt but with the British troops permitted to return to the canal zone in event of an emergency.

Today Year's Hottest?

Previous High Was 73 Degrees

Victoria's temperature today will reach a new high for the year—over 73 degrees, weatherman William Mackie reported at noon.

"It was 67 degrees at 11:30 this morning," he said. "It will be over 70 this afternoon, and may top the high for the year of 73 degrees, reached June 29."

Earlier maximums, he said, were 63 on Saturday, 67 Sunday and 65 Monday.

"Today will be the warmest of this stretch of fine weather," he said.

It will be short lived, though. Mr. Mackie said a small storm was reported in the vicinity of the weathership, and a small amount of moisture had reached Seaside today from the south.

CLOUDS COMING

"There will be cloud Wednesday and Thursday," he said.

Although the thermometer reached only to 68 degrees at Gonzales Observatory, Mr. Mackie said down-town temperatures would be higher.

"At times we have noticed a difference of as much as 10 degrees," he said.

Number of bathers at Willows Beach jumped sharply Monday, and by noon today gave indications that even larger crowds would be on hand this afternoon.

Shoal Bay and Cattle Point also had greater numbers enjoying the sun and water.

FLO POPULAR

Twin attractions at Cadboro Bay beach are Florence Chadwick and the long stretch of sand, according to Owen McCann.

"There are kids all over the place here today," he said.

S. Richards, Ell Lake merchant, said that although the beach was not too crowded Monday that large numbers were on hand today.

The brief warm spell, preceded by rain, has brought loganberries on the Saanich Peninsula along quickly, according to Joe Doe, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

"They are ripening rapidly," he said, "and should be ready for picking shortly."

CLEVELAND—In a home run packed battle American League defeated the favored National League, 11-9 in the annual All-Star baseball classic here today.

After the lead had see-sawed back and forth several times the American League finally won it in the bottom of the eighth with three runs, featured by Larry Doby's pinch-hit home run to tie the score at 9-9.

The brief warm spell, preceded by rain, has brought loganberries on the Saanich Peninsula along quickly, according to Joe Doe, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

ARTS CENTRE

Colin Graham, curator of the arts centre, added his personal criticism of council, stating:

"The city's conduct on the grants question makes one wonder whether our mayor and council regard Victoria as a civilized community!"

"I know of no other civic administration in Canada or elsewhere which has managed both to refuse aid and to insult its chief cultural organizations by the manner of doing it."

He pointed out the arts centre had nearly 30,000 visitors last year and cited this as ample proof that the centre was "an urgent need."

"Yet from the mayor and many of his councillors the gallery in the past two years has received nothing but evasive action," Mr. Graham said. "And that is a very polite way of phrasing recent history."

"Unfortunately our administration does not seem to stand on the same page as the city," he said. "Let it come out of the light."

KILL 'MAU MAU' GEN.

In sharply-worded statements today two of Victoria's leading cultural organizations roundly criticized Victoria City Council for the manner in which their requests for civic assistance were turned down last week.

The blast declaring the groups had been "insulted" followed a joint meeting of the boards of Victoria Symphony Society and Greater Victoria Arts Centre Monday night when council's rejection of their applications for aid was aired.

Main target of criticism was that council had led them to believe their applications were being considered and then at the last minute left them out of the grants on the basis that special by-laws would have to be passed.

"We consider that the conduct of the city administration in this matter, if not the result of incompetence, can only be termed frivolous," a joint statement by the two societies said.

"INCREDULOUS"

The statement said: "The Victoria Symphony Society and the Arts Centre of Greater Victoria have learned with incredulity of the manner in which the city council has refused them financial aid from the $25,000 fund voted for such purposes by Victoria citizens last year."

"We consider that council has culpably wasted the time of both organizations by holding consultations with their representatives without once revealing that such action was pointless in view of the fact that it was necessary to pass a council by-law before such grants could be made."

Council decided the manner of distributing its $25,000 fund last Thursday.

NOT INCLUDED

The symphony and arts centre were not included among those receiving a share. Council left them off after City Solicitor Arthur Patton advised it would take a by-law to allot funds for such purposes.

"We deplore the fact that council's position in this respect was only revealed by the solicitor at the actual moment that the funds were being distributed," the joint statement read.

"We deplore even more strongly the fact that council made no effort to remedy this situation by the relatively simple procedure of passing such a by-law."

ARTS CENTRE

Colin Graham, curator of the arts centre, added his personal criticism of council, stating:

"The city's conduct on the grants question makes one wonder whether our mayor and council regard Victoria as a civilized community!"

VIENNA, Austria—The Danube River flood crest moved on Vienna at a speed of nearly three miles an hour today, carrying drowned livestock, rooftops and wrecked bridges from West Germany and Austria with it.

The crest was expected to reach Vienna during the night. Meanwhile U.S. and Russian troops worked within a few hundred yards of each other to save an American airfield, and two Austrian villages from the turbulent waters. In spite of the menace, however, no "catastrophe" was expected.

Slice of Bread a Week in Japan Would End Our Wheat Problem

The ever-present problem of disposing of Canada's wheat crop could be solved if every one of Japan's 80,000,000 inhabitants consumed one slice of bread each week, according to former finance minister Einar Gunderson.

Mr. Gunderson, who leaves in August on a trade mission to Britain and Western Europe, told Victoria Gyro Club Monday that a two-year rice famine increasing wheat trade with Japan, "and giving western grain farmers a big new market."

Shortage of rice has forced Japanese to import Canadian grains, and the new food is "catching on with the young people," he said.

Mr. Gunderson travelled to Japan earlier this year with a delegation from the Vancouver Board of Trade.

"B.C. stands on the threshold of a 500-million person consumer market if large-scale trade with Asian countries can be resumed," said Mr. Gunderson.

Japan in particular, being ahead of other eastern nations in industrial development, also has the manpower and facilities to manufacture goods from Canadian natural resources.

"Eighty-million people in Japan live in an area less than half the size of B.C., only half of which is suitable for agriculture," he said.

For this reason, her economy is based entirely on import-export trade. They must keep production costs down so they can sell their products on the world market, and in turn use the money to buy food," Mr. Gunderson added.

He told the Gyros that Japan's quality of production is steadily improving, and that the "Made In Japan" trademark is no longer to be viewed with suspicion.

Sault Ste. Marie Unemployment So Severe Some Reported Starving

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)— Two aldermen said Monday night there is so much unemployment in this city that some persons are literally starving because they have no money to buy food.

They told city council that malnutrition is widespread and urged immediate action. Aldermen Anthony Nino and Peter King said they knew of people who weren't getting enough to eat.

Alderman King said he had received 5,558 separate appeals for assistance, including "some cases of actual starvation."

He said recent child victims of polio in one family here were definitely undernourished.

In the Bay View section of the city, said Alderman King, householders are supplying unemployed with food from their own tables and the produce from vegetable patches is being distributed among needy families.

There are 2,100 registered unemployed in Sault Ste. Marie, which has a population of about 33,000. During the winter the peak was 4,300 unemployed, but many of them have since left the city.

The major employer here is the Algoma Steel Corporation, which has laid off part of its staff. The company recently completed a $75,000,000 expansion program and many men were out of work when it was finished.

The secretary of the bakery union, Mel Kemmis, said bread was also being delivered on Sundays, violating another by-law.

COL. HOLMES RITES WEDNESDAY

1st War Commander Of 48th Dies Here

Col. W. F. H. Holmes, 1286 Roslyn, awarded the DSO and mentioned three times in dispatches for distinguished service in the front line in the First World War, will be buried Wednesday following a funeral service at 3 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay.

He died Saturday at Victoria Veterans' Hospital, age 83.

Col. Holmes was an honor graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. For some years he practised privately as a civil engineer and mine surveyor at Kootenay, B.C. In 1909 he formed six battalions of the Rocky Mountain Rangers into the 102nd Regiment and went overseas in 1915 in command of the famous Victoria 48th Battalion. The 48th was converted to a pioneer battalion before going to France and a year later was broken up to fill other units because of lack of reinforcements from British Columbia.

After the 48th break-up, Col. Holmes formed and commanded the Canadian reinforcement camp at Etaples, France, until the end of that conflict.

DIESELS MORE EFFICIENT

Comparing the amount of servicing required by each type of engine, Mr. Smith said "the steamer needs about eight hours out of 24 in the roundhouse. Diesels can run 22 out of 24 hours, and they only need a roundhouse check once a month instead of once a day."

CNR and CPR now are operating a total of some 1,000 diesels and each railway is buying about 40 units a year.

THE TREATY GIVES WIFE NATIONALITY OF HER HUSBAND

GENEVA (AP)— A draft treaty approved Monday by the United Nations economic and social council provides that married women may acquire the nationality of their husbands by means of a simple application.

The treaty would abolish any automatic change of nationality for women who marry foreigners, leaving the wife's future nationality to her own choice.

The treaty will come into force after it has been ratified by at least six countries.

Saanich Defers Decision; City Council Group Calls for Island-Mainland Action

Esquimalt Council followed City Council's lead Monday night by going on record as being opposed to B.C. Electric's application for higher bus fares and curtailed service.

At the same time, some opposition was voiced by members of Saanich Council, but it was decided to wait for a report from council's transportation committee before accepting or opposing B.C. Electric's bid.

The committee is to meet with company representatives July 28.

Passmore, Fleming Hit BCE Profit

At Saanich Council, two members opposed the fares on the grounds that the company is making sufficient profits from its electric power and gas to subsidize the transportation system.

"The company's statement shows that it is 'making 4.75 per cent profit on all operations,'" said Clr. Leslie Passmore. "I think that is a very good profit and as a public utility company it should absorb some of the losses of transportation."

Clr. Passmore said that he felt that when a company received the franchise for light and gas it should use some of its profits for the maintenance of the transportation system.

He charged that "foreigners" of predominantly Roman Catholic faith are being admitted to Canada and are voting in blocs against what he termed "the British Protestants of Canada."

The Catholic church, he said, is fighting to change public opinion "by immigration."

Lost 8 Days in Bush, Arthritic Proves Tough

NORTH BEND, Wash. (AP)

Gaunt, footsore and famished, a Seattle fisherman whose hunger drove him to eat boiled fern leaves was found Monday in the Cascade mountain wilderness where he had been lost eight days.

But outside of being weary and almost starved, James E. Stolberg, 31, was in amazingly good shape after the ordeal.

His wife and four children had abandoned hope he would turn up alive.

The bewhiskered Seattle bar-her seized his wife, Anna, in a wordless embrace as he stepped from a state patrol car at this little mountain town about midway between Seattle and the trail where he became lost.

A Second World War veteran who suffered from arthritis, Stolberg said the first night he built a lean-to near a snow-bank, using his map as a cover to help cut the cold.

Two days later he found an abandoned cabin where there were blankets. He stayed there, caught a few fish, gathered salmon berries and once in desperation boiled up some ferns as a sort of stew.

A forestry service searcher spotted him at the cabin, and notified the state patrol who rescued him.

Tariffs in Secret

ACCORDING TO A RECENT DECISION of the Canadian courts, seven mills producing fine papers, together with 21 wholesalers or merchants, have long conducted an illegal combine in restraint of trade.

The heavy fines levied on these offenders were reported in the press but little note has been taken of another aspect of the case—the combine battened down comfortably and profitably behind a protectionist wall which restrained foreign competition. As usual, protectionism and combination went hand in hand at the consumer's expense.

Combines are usually troubled by the disloyalty of their members, who may break the cosy price arrangements established by illegal agreement. In the fine paper case an elaborate policing system was established, whereby the participants' books were kept open to inspection by a trusted official. That device successfully covered the fine paper business within Canada, where the combine controlled about 90 per cent of the market. There remained the danger of competitive imports from other countries which might disturb the Canadian price structure.

The fine paper industry (not to be confused with the newsprint and other paper industries) enjoyed substantial tariff protection but not enough to satisfy it. There was always the chance that merchants might import foreign papers and, even after paying the existing duties, sell the imports below the prices fixed by the combine. To guard against this danger another interesting arrangement was enforced. It was given the harmless name of a "loyalty discount," which meant that the local merchant was allowed a cut in the price of the combine's products provided he did not import similar products from foreign countries.

The "loyalty discount" apparently worked well. In his judgment against the combine Mr. Justice Spence noted several cases in which merchants were persuaded not to import foreign products by the threatened loss of the "loyalty discount." This, in fact, was an unofficial system of tariff protection never authorized or intended by Parliament and contrary to law.

The Government has successfully convicted the combine in a trial court, though the case is to be appealed. But what does the government intend to do about these secret tariffs?

It does not lack power in this matter. For more than half a century Canadian law has contained a little-known provision by which the Government can reduce or remove customs duties where the courts have found them to be used in support of a combine.

In the fine paper case Mr. T. D. MacDonald, the able commissioner under the Combines Investigation Act, has carefully considered the protectionist devices of the combine. He has formally suggested that "modification of the rates of tariff be carefully considered." Now that all the facts are in, the Government should act on Mr. MacDonald's recommendation, since obviously it is not the combine but the consuming public that requires protection.

Greatness in Opposition

IN OPPOSITION THE STATURE of Mr. Adlai Stevenson continues to grow and may well carry him, some day, into office.

His latest message to the Democratic Party is the utterance of a great and clear-headed man. Naturally, Democratic politicians are inclined to rejoice at the appalling difficulties of a Republican Administration which had guaranteed to clean up what Mr. Stevenson himself once called "the mess in Washington." He finds no comfort in this spectacle. The Democratic Party, he says, should not try to undermine the Government, should do everything possible to make its policies succeed, especially in foreign affairs. For, he observes, the Republican Party governs the whole nation and no American—and no human being in the world for that matter—can escape its success or its failure.

The temptation to crow over the political enemy's embarrassment must be very great among Democrats and many yield to it. Not Mr. Stevenson. He is far less interested in his own future than in the future of the nation and the human family at large.

One of the greatest weaknesses in the American constitutional system is that it excludes from the legislature the opposition candidate for President. Under the British parliamentary system Mr. Stevenson would now be in Parliament, leading the opposition and preparing, if the Government failed, to replace it. In the United States he is a private citizen without any official power.

Nevertheless, he has a great power of an intangible sort. He has made himself the conscience of his Party, his views cannot be ignored by the Government and he has introduced a certain responsibility into politics where it is badly needed today.

A Good Year for Canada

THERE IS, AS THE FINANCIAL Post observes after a nationwide survey of business conditions, no room for pessimism about Canada's economic future.

On the whole business has turned out in the first half of this year about as expected by its leaders and by the Federal Government. It has improved after the small decline of last autumn. Employment has lately increased. Capital construction is proceeding on a massive scale. Investment has not faltered, as some pessimists expected. Looking ahead six months, The Post concludes that 1954 will be as good a year for Canada as 1953, in which all records of production and consumption were broken.

Much more important factors are at work, however, than the immediate prosperity of some industries, the weakness of others. One of the largest is the fact that the Canadian population has increased by 30 per cent, since 1941. We have four million more people to develop our resources and to consume them. We are, in fact, a rapidly growing concern and we already have a national economy which, ten years ago, would have seemed impossible.

But of course that economy does not stand alone and isolated from the business of the world. It lives mainly on international trade and the world market. The future of business thus depends not on our ability to produce goods but on our ability to sell them at prices which the world market—and the domestic market also—can pay.

Whatever happens in the second half of this year, the long-term question is whether we can adjust ourselves to changing conditions in the world at large, in terms of productive costs and selling prices, or whether, having built a superb industrial machine, we shall run it off the rails by loading it with excessive burdens.

Baby Needs . . .

ONE OF VICTORIA'S NEIGHBORHOOD drugstores lists its stock in a painted sign which, with an economy of commas and gay disregard for the sentence, the words form, proclaims "BABY NEEDS COSMETICS CAMERAS, FILMS MAGAZINES AND PRESCRIPTIONS."

Granting the precocity of infants in that locality, the statement might still prove confusing to strangers.

The explanation would not, however, be any more difficult than a task imposed on the United States Information Agency. Recently it was instructed to answer, over the Voice of America broadcasts, the question "What is an American drugstore?"

The Christian Science Monitor suggests that "If you ever wonder what you are going to want next—before you have thought of it—just step into the druggist's store."

Or, if you are in Victoria, and want to pass a few pleasant minutes in engaging talk, step into the neighborhood drugstore and discuss the connotations of the word "Baby" with particular reference to her needs for cosmetics, cameras, films and magazines. This, at least, will keep you from drifting into somewhat more costly surroundings where the chant is: "Baby needs a new pair of shoes."

It is a pharmacist will be found at the rear of the store carefully filling prescriptions. But before you reach him you will pass a soda fountain and sandwich counter; you will survey shelves of dentifrices and display cases of cosmetics; in most such emporiums of any size you will be able to buy an electric toaster, a toy for your nephew, a box of chocolates, a fountain pen and so on.

LOOSE ENDS

Miss Chadwick and Mr. Chou

A FRIEND of mine, in a distant city, has written to ask me why the people of Victoria are so excited about Miss Florence Chadwick. Are there not, he asks, some other affairs in the current world quite as important as Miss Chadwick's attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca?

In a political, economic and military sense I dare say there are affairs even more important than this attempt. One sometimes wonders, indeed, if the world under its present strain will last long enough for Miss Chadwick to reach the American shore. Nevertheless, in a philosophical sense (even if she does not realize it) I submit that there is nothing more important in our time that what Miss Chadwick is trying to do here this summer.

THAT fact will not be immediately apparent to readers who see Miss Chadwick's handsome face on one side of the page and perhaps the cunning face of Mr. Chou En-lai on the other. Nevertheless, all philosophers, like the readers of this column, will see at once that the struggle for the world is, in essence, a struggle between the Chadwicks on one side and the Chous on the other.

I dare say Miss Chadwick regards herself only as a swimmer in the cold peaceful waters, lying between us and a friendly neighbor. She, and others like her, are much more than that. They are the people who do what they please.

They are thus the symbol of the free world, now struggling for survival against enemies who would tell us to do what they please.

EVERY man or woman worthy of the name has a Strait of Juan de Fuca to swim every day. Most of us don't get across. We sink or turn back, shivering and defeated. But if we are any good we plunge in again next morning. Every good man or woman, that is to say, has some objective in life and some test which must be met. These objectives and tests vary. Mr. Chou's objective, is to conquer the world for communism and he meets his test in the ocean of world politics. Miss Chadwick seeks nothing more than the conquest of twenty miles of salt water. It may seem to some thoughtless people that Mr. Chou's objective, while evil; is worth his efforts; while Miss Chadwick, on crossing the Strait, will have achieved nothing of any use to anybody.

That is a shallow view. For only the individual in a free society can choose what is important to him or her, and it is supremely important that he or she should have the right to choose. In our society Miss Chadwick chooses to conquer the Strait. In Chinese society Mr. Chou chooses to conquer Asia and the world. Which is the better objective—the harmless and worthless objective of the American girl or the violent, practical objective of the Chinese statesman?

THE answer depends, of course, on how you look at things. The believer in human freedom must reply that even if Miss Chadwick cannot change an inch of geography, cannot affect the Strait, cannot influence the course of human events, still she will certainly change herself.

For reasons known only to her she must swim these waters. Those are reasons enough for anything, indeed the only valid and respectable reasons for everything valuable in human life. Every human being worth his salt faces some kind of trial, public or private, and if no trial is provided by circumstances he chooses one for himself, as Miss Chadwick has done. When men or women no longer can face such trial they might as well be dead and some already are, though still walking around.

ANYWAY, as I have advised by distant friend, the people hereabouts are interested in Miss Chadwick because instinctively they know she is much more than a swimmer. She is a reflection of their own nature. Her trial in cold water is a mirror of our universal human trial in the secret cold and heat of life.

Most of us could not swim a hundred yards in the Strait and would be idiotic to try. But our minds swim beside Miss Chadwick knowing that, in her curious, impractical but not entirely valid fashion, she represents the universal contest of our species.

If she fails, it doesn't matter. We all fall in the end, even the Chous of the world. What matters is the will to try. And so long as there are people willing to try to the Strait, so long as their trial is understood and approved by the public at large—so long, in fact, as the lonely human person insists on doing what he pleases, the free world will survive and Mr. Chou will never cross his Strait.

Professional Witnesses

BY JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP, From Washington

THE employment of professional informers and witnesses by the American government is such a novel practice that its full import, and even the fact of its novelty, are not widely understood.

Yet any sharp departure from American tradition deserves to be studied and understood before it is accepted or rejected, as the case may be. Here, then, are the essential facts about this unprecedented group of public servants, who are now to be found on the Justice Department's payroll under the classification of "consultants to the Immigration and Naturalization Service," and has thus legalized his reimbursement at the higher rate.

So what happens when Mr. X, the professional government witness, is approached by Mr. Y, of the Criminal Division, who has a difficult Smith Act case or deportation case or something similar on his hands? Mr. Y asks Mr. X whether he knows the defendants in the case and can testify against them. If Mr. X says, "Yes," he does know them," he gets his $25 per diem and earns his living. If he says, "No, he doesn't know them," he does not get his $25 per diem and skips payment on a new television set.

PAID DIFFERENTIAL

That, roughly and crudely, is the nature of the positions of this new breed of public servant. The resulting temptations both for the professional witness and the eager-beaver government lawyer, are too obvious to need underlining.

Fifty or so persons are now classified as Immigration Service consultants. Although it is questionable practice to pay these people much more than other government workers, and the distinction will be plain enough.

Mr. X, let us call him, is an ex-Communist of very slender talent and only ordinary earning capacity. Until he discovered that ex-Communism could become a profitable trade, he was making something between 80 cents and $1.50 an hour at a shabby succession of odd jobs. Then he makes his break with the party, tells his story to the proper authorities, and is taken on by the Justice Department as a "consultant to the Immigration Service."

For this new work, Mr. X receives $25 per diem, plus an additional per diem in lieu of subsistence, and reimbursement for transportation when called to work away from home. He is not really a consultant at all. Even his value as an informer is greatly diminished by the fact that he left the Communist party some time ago. His chief task is to appear on the witness stand, and to win convictions for the government lawyers.

It is for appearing on the witness stand, remember, that Mr. X gets the $25 per diem which is either his main source of income or a very important supplement of his other earnings. Other witnesses called by the government are paid a trifling $4 per diem but in order to allow Mr. X to make his living by appearing as a witness, the Justice Department has thoughtfully given him his title of "consultant to the Immigration Service," and has thus legalized his reimbursement at the higher rate.

The Daily Worker has announced its delight that some of these people are now being investigated, which is proof positive that the original purpose of their employment was a good purpose.

There are 12 who have earned enough so that one may reasonably presume the sums were meaningful to them, and can thus be fairly called professionals. Of these 12, three are now under investigation by the Justice Department for possible perjury.

It would seem that living is high enough these days without the Vancouver Island Coach Lines raising fares. They will only decrease their passenger fares. Commuters will simply, legally or otherwise, take rides, and can one blame them?

Had they cut the fares instead of raising them, they would have solved all their problems. People cannot afford (as in this instance) the fare to and from Sidney very often. There is nothing like low fares to get quick returns. Shame on the Coach Lines for not being able to figure that out. This fare-raise is a snorter.

Why don't they try lowering the fares instead of raising them? They would be astounded at the number of people who would take advantage of their services. People of limited means and small salaries cannot stand these raises—and why should they without a little kick?

One of these fine days, if they raise their fares any more, they are going to see one big bus driven by one-lonely bus driver with perhaps one old passenger to keep him from talking to himself on the way from Victoria to Sidney.

IVE a dog a bad name, they say, and it sticks to him. There may be something to the statement but its application isn't as universal as you might suppose.

You probably think of it when you hear the story of a person who has come out of prison and says he has to go back to crime because his record stops him from getting an honest job.

No doubt there are cases in this town where a man with a record can't find employment in particular fields. Three big organizations—employers of different types of labor—have company policies which prevent hiring of ex-prisoners, but they're the exceptions.

There's also in this town an outfit called the John Howard Society which makes a business of trying to find work for former prisoners who have a sincere desire to play it straight once they're out.

It may not be surprising to learn that the majority of employers in Victoria are ready to give the Society as much co-operation as they can. What is surprising is that many of them who have been let down will try again.

DESIRE TO HELP

They do it, according to the John Howard officials here, because they want to help a man to rehabilitate himself. It's the human thing to do and they derive a lot satisfaction from the effort.

When the Society held its annual meeting late this spring, its president reported that a score or more ex-prisoners who had come to John Howard in the preceding two years had apparently succeeded in their rehabilitation attempts. That doesn't mean there was no chance of them sliding back.

It means that for a year or more these people who had served their terms had kept out of trouble. They had gained relatively steady employment, had regained a measure of self-respect, and self-confidence, had often been re-united with their families and were, as far as could be seen, behaving like citizens.

I suppose that was reward enough for the employers who had given them jobs. There's something pretty satisfying in helping to save a brand from the burning. There's a certain risk, too. You can get singed in the process.

Most people who land up in police court on criminal charges get there because they're suffering from some fundamental weakness. If, when they come out of jail, they recognize it and are sincere enough in wanting to correct it, they're fair bets for rehabilitation. If they wind up with a desire to get even with society for putting them away, the chances of reclaiming them aren't good—aren't even fair. When they get into trouble again, it's usually their own fault.

GIVEN A CHANCE

At least in this community, they're given a chance. More employers than you'd imagine see it to that they are.

The man who comes out of prison doesn't start working at the top of the tree. He has a fairly long way to go. That's one of the penalties he imposed on himself when he took the risk and was caught. Still, the opportunity to find honest work is there, if he's ready to do his share, if he'll recognize the fact that he has to make his way up again by establishing and justifying confidence in his honesty, decency and ability.

That's how the John Howard Society here feels about it. The attitude is reasonable enough. It isn't a case of over-sentimentality on the Society's part. It's just the human inclination to help a guy who needs a hand.

And there's an important economic factor involved. The cost is just too high against society when the person released from prison is ignored and left to slide back into crime. It costs money for the things he steals or the damage he does. It costs money to provide the police force to catch him, the legal machinery to try him, the organization to keep him in prison if he's convicted, and the maintenance of his family while he's incarcerated.

That's a pretty crass way of looking at rehabilitation. It isn't the approach of most employers in the town. They're moved generally by the hope of helping somebody along to decent citizenship.

And the way they extend themselves makes it a little difficult to find too much sympathy for the two-or-three-time loser who says he has to go back to crime because he can't find honest work.

Saanich Workers Cut Wage Demands 12%

New Offer Conditional on Council Consideration of Reclassification

Saanich municipal employees have offered to reduce their wage demands from 15 to 3 per cent across-the-board, providing Saanich Council agrees to undertake a study with a view to reclassification of office employees.

The union's new move to settle the six-months-old wage dispute which threatens to develop into a strike, was made by Tom Gooderham, business agent for the Saanich Municipal Employees Association, at a council meeting Monday.

The council decided to appoint a committee of three to discuss the matter with union officials before arriving at a decision. Reeve Joseph Casey, Clr. S. W. Broek and Clr. George Austin, will serve on the committee.

Negotiations nearly broke down between the council and the union when Reeve Casey opposed the union's request for an "independent investigation" into the reclassification of municipal employees.

REEVE OPPOSED

The Reeve said he was against the union's proposal, claiming job evaluation was entirely a problem for the council.

"All that we are asking is for the council to agree to the appointment of a person to investigate job evaluation in the municipal hall," replied Mr. Gooderham. "The man can be an outsider or a government official trained in these matters. We will abide by his report."

The argument continued between the Reeve and union officials until Clr. Brock interjected with the complaint that no real effort was being made to settle the wage dispute. "I'm disappointed with the atmosphere that is developing at this meeting," he said. "I thought a real effort would be made to settle this matter."

Clr. Brock recommended that a committee be appointed immediately to discuss the matter with the union to see if both parties could come to an agreement. The Reeve and the councilors finally agreed.

FINDINGS

The doctor's findings were listed on a pencilled memorandum which read:

"No evidence of pancreatitis or kidney disease."

"Recommendation: Exhumation for further examination."

CROFTON SITE OF PULP MILL, SAYS MAYOR

DUNCAN — Mayor J. C. Wragg told city council here Monday evening that he had heard definitely that a pulp mill would be established at Crofton.

Premier Bennett, in a recent address here, announced that a pulp mill would be built in the district, but he did not specify an exact location.

Mayor Wragg said the proposed power line from the mainland would reach Vancouver Island between Crofton and Maple Bay, and could serve such a mill.

School Board 'Bickering' Irks Council

Duncan Aldermen Will Suggest Electing Trustees 'At Large'

DUNCAN—Dissatisfaction over the system of election of trustees to Cowichan School District 65 and the "bickering" that goes on during board meetings, was voiced by Duncan city council Monday evening.

A motion was made aird passed by aldermen that the city clerk write to the minister of education on behalf of the council, advocating that rural trustees be elected from the rural district at large, similar to the mode of election observed in the municipalities. It was also decided to send copies of this letter to the two city representatives on the board and to the municipality of North Cowichan.

Discussion arose on this matter following reading of a letter from North Cowichan, which was a copy of one sent to the minister of education. The letter stated that a meeting of the council, held recently, was attended by municipal trustees to obtain the view of the council on the question of secession of the southern area — unorganized territory — from the remainder of the school district.

The municipal council was not prepared at that time to give an expression of opinion on the administrative aspect, until such time as it had information on the financial aspect, the letter stated. If this was favorable the council would then consider a proposal to eliminate two school districts within the municipality by reorganizing "the municipality and the city areas into one school district.

HARMING DISTRICT

The council stated it would welcome the opportunity to discuss this matter with city council and the minister, trustees and any other parties who would be affected by the change-over.

Mayor J. C. Wragg said it was unfortunate that trouble was occurring on the school board, "for it is not doing this district any good." He said "that with all this friction taking place, people would not stand for the trustee office."

Trustee George Bonner was criticized by Ald. R. K. Cairns, who said that he was "the mouthpiece" for a group of men and that Mr. Bonner was running the southern end of the district.

Ald. Jack Dobson also thought that "there is a lot of bickering on the school board." Mayor Wragg told council that the board is "going to have a hard time trying to get teachers here" after the trouble they have had."

Question of a pay increase for non-professional members of the Victoria Public Library staff will probably be dealt with by the library board at a meeting later this week.

Earlier in the year, the board refused its non-professional help a raise in pay but made a gentlemen's agreement with the staff that if inside workers at City Hall were awarded a salary increase, they would get the same.

The inside staff has since been given a two per cent wage increase and certain other benefits.

City workers hope by the end of this week to have four new harbor floats permanently moored in front of the Government Street Causeway.

The floats, built in sections at the city's Garibaldi Road yards, are now in the water but are not in position. The floats have not yet been decked. Planks will be laid once they are in place.

Wurtelle Still Waits Ottawa Word on Road

Reeve A. C. Wurtelle told Esquimalt Council Monday night he had no official information to verify press reports attributed to Victoria MP Dr. F. T. Fairey concerning early reconstruction of Admirals Road.

The municipality has delayed rebuilding while awaiting federal action. It is argued that defense department's heavy traffic makes the road largely a federal responsibility.

Boxla Dressing Rooms Ruined by Vandals

Youthful vandalism has caused indefinite closure of dressing rooms adjoining Bullen Park lacrosse box. It was announced by Esquimalt council Monday night.

Parks and playgrounds chairman, Clr. James Bryant, said that washroom and toilet facilities in the building have been "completely demolished" and walls and ceilings torn down.

Council agreed to his recommendation that the building should be boarded up until money is available for replacement.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

A ho-hum and a hi-dee-ho; back from a week with the golfers, and where do we go?

Bob Fleming, for sure, goes to the Canadian Open in Vancouver, and the little guy had all the heart in the world in that thrilling golf final with Lyle Crawford Saturday. . . . And Mrs. Rhys-Jones never missed a beat in her brilliant comeback attempt in the afternoon round after being four down at lunch to Ruth Jessen of Seattle, who must be a future champion . . . of more than the PN.

But the happiest guy in town is coach Bruce Humber of the YMCA track and field club and the happiest people on the Island are from up there in Cumberland.

Terry Tobacco, the Cumberland comet, hit his peak in the B.E.G. trials at Vancouver. He ran the fastest quarter of his life, a sparkling 48.8. He broke the B.C. mark of 49.5 and he cut down the field one by one in a dazzling final 220 yards and was only a breath behind the winner, Joe Foreman, at the finish.

"If the race had been a foot longer, he would have won," quoth Humber. "It brought tears of joy to my eyes."

And on and on roll the Shamrocks, with Jim Hetherington stepping in to fill Geordy Johnston's shoes in fine style as the regular custodian of the twins recuperates from an injury.

And the well wishes of the Rocks and every city sportsman go, as they should, to Bill "Dusty" Mai (bet some of you didn't know his first name before) . . . The Shamrock trainer has received his official appointment to the B.E.G. board of boxing officials. The Rocks chipped in $28 at Sunday's fish-fest to help "Dusty" on his way.

If you want the inside on the fight picture, here it is: . . . Earl Walls meets Edgar Romero in Vancouver on Thursday, July 22, and Don Cockell gives Harry Matthews of Seattle a third chance at Seattle on July 30. . . . A victory for Walls and one for Cockell, who should repeat his two earlier decisions, could mean an Empire heavyweight championship bout in Vancouver in the fall. That's the plum that will be dangled before the Empire greats.

Chris Chataway, the great English runner—where has he been?

In his usual spot, no less. When Fred Green of England cracked the world three-mile record on Saturday, Chataway was second by inches. . . . When Roger Bannister broke the four-minute mile, Chataway was the pacemaker. . . . When John Landy surpassed Bannister's mark, there was Chataway again. . . . He should get a medal or something and it could be that he will at the B.E.G. . . . A guy just can't keep coming that close for ever. . . . But don't the B.E.G. boys love it just the same, what with another world beater like Green in the field?

We promised we wouldn't mention a word about the Twins until they lost a game in the second half of the WIL race, and by golly it's tough not to make special note of a club that is hustling like all-get-out as they go out in front.

Pils to Host Rocks; Indians Trim Royals

Victoria Shamrocks will be playing the first of their three scheduled Intercity Lacrosse League contests this week when they tangle with third-place Vancouver Pilgrims tonight in the mainland.

Wednesday night Shamrocks return home to host second-place PNE Indians at Memorial Arena, and Friday night the youthful New Westminster Royals will be in town to provide opposition for the league leaders.

At Vancouver Forum Monday night PNE Indians moved six points up on Pilgrims and made a successful television debut as they whipped a hapless Royals' club, 12-10, in a lackluster game before a small crowd and the TV cameras. . . . Royals, playing with a jittery forward, Doug McRory, in the nets in place of regular goalie Bill Sampson, stayed with the Indians for the entire game and at times took the play in command. Sampson injured a hand at work recently and was unable to play.

The two clubs were tied, 3-3, at the end of the first quarter. Indians sniped five straight goals to the Royals brace for an 8-5 half-time margin, boosted it to 10-7 at the three-quarter mark and walked off the floor with a 12-10 win, after the final canto.

Shamrocks will be missing the services of Geordy Johnston again tonight, and will be minus Norm Baker. Johnston will rest his injured leg, Jim Hetherington replacing him, while Baker is unable to make the trip.

Harry Irwin will return to action on a forward line with Al Gill and Bill Bamford after missing one game, while Tom Druce, who has missed the last two games, will be available for utility.

Proof That Fishing Is Now Tops

Proof that fishing is at a peak right now is given here by Gordon Fyfe, 1512 Vining Street, who recently boated this 21-pound 13-ounce salmon off MacKenzie Bay, near Brentwood. He was using a strip-teaser with 200 feet of steel line and a planer. His catch unofficially earned him seventh rung on the sixth weekly ladder of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby and a berth in the final fish-off.

Big Names To Miss Open

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Canada's top golfers and a smattering of big name golf pros from the United States tested the Point Grey Golf Club course today tuning up for the Canadian Open July 14 to 17.

The last of the field of 134 arrived in Vancouver Monday, bringing with them a rare day of sunshine.

Weather reports indicated a rain-free start at least for the $15,000 tourney, traditionally the country's No. 1 golf spectacle.

Officials anticipated large crowds, upwards of 10,000 during the last two days, despite the absence of most of the high-ranking U.S. money winners, now on the "gold trail" in the eastern states and waiting the PGA tournament.

Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass., a heavy favorite to finish well up disappointed officials when he withdrew Monday. Lawson Little of Pebble Beach, Calif., also was a possible non-starter.

Interest was centring around Stan Leonard of Vancouver Marine Drive, who outclassed the field last weekend with an eight under par 205 in the CPGA tournament at Edmonton.

Leonard stood an excellent chance of being the first Canadian to win the Seagram's gold cup since 1914 when Karl Keefer of Ottawa turned the trick, observers said.

Hottest practice rounds reported Monday were 67 by John Geertson of San Francisco, 69 by Bob Wythe of Calgary, Alta., and 70s by Al Zimmerman of Paradise Valley, Ariz., and Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., who placed 14th in the U.S. open.

Leonard and Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, Sask., toured the course Monday but didn't keep score.

THANKS TO STAN

Vancouver To Be Ready When Games Roll

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two years ago Stan Smith, an affable Vancouver trust company executive, went to Helsinki to study the problems of organizing Olympic games, the world's biggest sports spectacle. His object was to apply the lessons learned to the 1954 British Empire Games in this city.

Smith, general chairman of the Vancouver organizing committee of the B.E. Games, received a fancy brush-off. Some Canadian Olympic committee officials on the spot strained to say hello to him. He paid to see the various events, just as hundreds of thousands others did.

The Canadian committee, hock-nobbing with the world's leaders in Olympic and B.E. Games matters, didn't give him a badge. There were conferences attended by men who could give Smith valuable hints, but the invitations went Smith.

The Canadian committee, hock-nobbing with the world's leaders in Olympic and B.E. Games matters, didn't give him a badge. There were conferences attended by men who could give Smith valuable hints, but the invitations went Smith.

The Helsinki trip cost the Vancouver committee nearly $3,000 for a jaunt that appeared at the time to be a joy ride for Smith.

The team includes six world record holders.

AUSSIE B.E.G. TEAM EN ROUTE

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Sixty-eight athletes, including 15 women, left by air for Vancouver today to represent Australia in the British Empire Games.

Hundreds of friends and relatives thronged the airport to bid farewell to the team, described by manager J. Eve as "the strongest ever to leave Australia."

The full team could not be accommodated on the plane and the bowlers will leave Wednesday.

The team includes six world record holders.

U.S. COAST GUARD, WASHINGTON SHERIFF'S POSSE JOIN IN INTRICATE PLANNING FOR 'OPERATION CHADWICK'

Helicopter, Plane, Boats to Guard Flo's $10,000 Swim

BY DENNY BOYD

All the precise planning and split-second timing of a full-scale military invasion will be utilized when Florence Chadwick attempts to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca, from Victoria to Port Angeles, in the second week of August.

Details of strategy for "Operation Chadwick" were mapped out in Victoria Monday when, officials of British America Paint Company and the Victoria Daily Times, co-sponsors of the $10,000 swim, met with delegates of Port Angeles, Miss Chadwick, her mother and swim coaches Archie McKinnon and Jack Todd.

Representing Port Angeles at the meeting were Keith Patterson of radio station KONP, who has been appointed liaison officer from the Port Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and Cmdr. Robert E. McCaffery of the 13th Coast Guard Unit, stationed at Ediz Hook.

Cmdr. McCaffery reported his units are fully prepared to convoy Miss Chadwick from Victoria to Port Angeles and would police the course of the swim by sea and air.

He said that he would provide three naval vessels for patrol purposes to keep small boats from interfering with Miss Chadwick during her swim. The vessels, manned by Coast Guard personnel, will be 100, 83 and 43 feet in length.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Quips that pass in the night never seem to make port in the morning.

This is a well-known fact to all those who have watched through sleep-heavy eyes while the grey fingers of dawn scratch silently at the window shades.

Speaking personally, I have achieved far better quips than ever saw the full light of day, while lying in the half-real borderline between sleep and the first agony of aroused consciousness.

(Editor's Note: Look Roberts, if you're going on like this much longer, better you should have stayed asleep).

It is in the magical half-world of emergence from the soothing drug of somnambulistic relaxation that one's stream of consciousness pours forth the bon mots guaranteed to convulse the most sophisticated and blasé audience.

(Editor's note: Curt, clear, concise, Roberts. Who, what, when, where, etc.).

But how tantalizing it is to finally come fully awake, chuckling at the brilliance of the quip one has just made ... and then to face the cold, hard dawn of reality, in which the point of the quip has escaped one completely, leaving one deflated and facing a drear day of puzzlement over why one thought it funny in the first place.

(Editor's note: Somewhere back in that last involved sentence, Roberts, you mentioned "point." How about getting to it?)

So alright, already. The point is, last night I woke up laughing so hard the pup-dog J.B. snarled at me for silence. Today, can I remember what was funny?

Nope. All I can remember is, it had something to do with the well-known phrase which begins "Some of my best friends are . . ."

You know what I mean. You are about to run down somebody, so you say: "Some of my best friends are fire-eaters, but I do believe they don't give the fire half a chance."

Well, all I can remember of the snappy saying which woke me up was, it was a twist on the above expression. But what was it?

Some of my best friends are friends. Some of my best friends are enemies. Some of my best friends are friends?

It MUST have been better than any of those, because they aren't funny.

(Editor's note: Neither are you, Roberts).

Oh, well, if at first you don't succeed . . .

A Trades and Labor Council letter urging support for amalgamation of police and fire services in Greater Victoria received short shrift at Esquimalt council meeting Monday night. A Becher Bay youth who said he fell asleep while driving, ran into a power line pole on Sooke Road near Colwood Corner Monday night, but escaped with only minor injuries. Colwood RCMP rushed Vernon Wright, about 17, to Jubilee Hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises. The car was heavily damaged and the pole shattered at the base, police said.

Police rushed Mrs. Lillian Cleaver, 60, 2350 Trent, to Jubilee Hospital Monday after she was struck by a car which was backing from a driveway near Trent and Fort. Modern, scientific diet can make a new man out of you (unless you're a woman). Not long ago my friend, Dexter Whey, came to me and complained of weak vision and spots before his eyes. I found that he had been eating nothing but foods that contain starch (macaroni, potatoes, shirt collars). The starch had stiffened his stomach and every time he bent over it sounded like beaverboard cracking; and his children used to laugh at him. Well, I put Dexter on a diet of raw carrots which contain natural vitamin A to help his eyesight. He ate nothing but raw carrots three times a day and at the end of only five weeks Dexter Whey could see in the dark—if someone would hold his head up.

In addition, Cmdr. McCaffery will supply a helicopter, fitted with a loud hailer, to hover over Miss Chadwick to police the boats from the air. Cmdr. McCaffery said, "The loudhailer on the 'copter' will be loud and if any boat steps out of line, they will hear about it in no uncertain terms. I feel, with our patrol boats and the 'copter, we will be able to keep the area of her swim entirely clear of boats."

Miss Chadwick had explained that the exhaust and cross-wash of boats that have circled her indiscriminately on previous swims that were not policed, constituted as much a menace as cold and tides.

In addition to the Coast Guard units, a Grumman Goose flying boat, donated by the Powell River Pulp and Paper Co., will be in service. The amphibious craft will be fitted with a stretcher and will be ready to drop to the water in case of any emergency.

Miss Chadwick told the meeting that the rules of international long distance swimming prohibit the swimmer from receiving aid in her landing until she has gained water that is below her knees. Because of this she asked that the beach at Port Angeles be patrolled to prevent any incident that would result in her disqualification.

Mr. Patterson reported that the Sheriff's Posse, a voluntary auxiliary police force, would patrol the beach and form a protective cordon around Miss Chadwick when she emerges from the water. The beach patrol will be informed by radio from the boats as to the whereabouts of Miss Chadwick and her likely landing site.

Two trips to Port Angeles, prior to the one that may win her $10,000, have been planned.

The first, on July 24, will be a goodwill visit while the second, probably in the first week of August, will give Miss Chadwick's navigator the chance to map out a course and examine the Port Angeles shoreline.

Her navigator, Frank Seehorn of San Pedro, Calif., is expected in Victoria around August 6.

In her first visit to Port Angeles, Miss Chadwick will go by ferry and then will be taken out to sea by private boat. She plans to swim into Ediz Hook from about five miles at sea, to test conditions and to give Port Angeles residents a preview of the big swim.

In addition, she will preside at the opening of a swimming pool for youngsters.

'Operation Chadwick' Mapped Out

No details are being overlooked as the time nears when Florence Chadwick will attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca. As the date of the $10,000 Bapco-Times swim has been tentatively set for Aug. 9-12, the wheels are moving to provide a safe passage of the world's greatest woman long distance swimmer. Shown here are officials of the Victoria Daily Times and Bapco Paint, co-sponsors, ironing out details with Port Angeles delegates at a meeting

Sovereign to Aid Sudbury Tow Ships to B.C. Yards

The Island Tug & Barge sea-going towboat Island Sovereign is scheduled to rendezvous with another company tug, the Sudbury, at Balboa on July 28, to assist in towing British-registry vessels back to British Columbia for repair and conversion in B.C. shipyards.

She was to leave Victoria at 2 p.m. today.

It is understood conversion work on the vessels will run to about $150,000 each. H. B. Elworthy, president of Island Tug, could not state today exactly how many vessels are involved.

However, Sudbury, which left here June 28, is today approaching Cristobal, on the Atlantic side of the Panama Canal, with two ships in tow.

Mr. Elworthy said Sudbury would pick up "another tow" before making the meet with Island Sovereign at Balboa.

Both Sovereign and Sudbury are powerful towboats, the latter being the largest in operation on this coast.

Working plans are expected to be completed by the end of this year. Target date for operation of the depot is 1956.

The new depot will allow consolidation of storage for equipment now stored in over-crowded buildings at HMC Dockyard, in borrowed RCAF hangars at Patricia Bay, and other Pacific Command points.

It will be built on National Defense property, in the Island Highway-Wilfert Road area.

Topics of the school will include organizing, programming, practical problems, and the teaching of leatherwork, block printing, puppetry, old-fashioned conditioning and recreational games.

Driving without a license resulted in a $25 fine for Louise A. Bailey, 322 Montreal, when she appeared in Esquimalt police court Monday.

She said the man refused to give his name. Prosecutor Alan Bigelow pointed out to the commission that there is no law says a man must give his name, but that failing to do so the traffic offender must appear in court.

The commission cleared a woman clerk who was criticized by a man who came to the station to pay a ticket. He alleged in his complaint that the clerk refused his money. The woman held that the man was "beligerent" and said her instructions were that "anyone who kicked up a fuss be sent into court."

NO LAW

The man refused to give his name. Prosecutor Alan Bigelow pointed out to the commission that there is no law says a man must give his name, but that failing to do so the traffic offender must appear in court.

The other members of the commission, W. Hamilton and Gordon Carter reiterated the mayor's recommendation that the collection of tickets be moved to the City Hall "to relieve the traffic office of unpleasantness."

She was one of eight Victoria youngsters who took prizes in the games, staged last Sunday at Portland's Jantzen Beach.

Heather Duncan placed high in dancing for those under 16; Len Williams and Elizabeth Moyes shared honors in dancing under 13; Patricia Conrad and Dennis Underwood, took awards in the under 11 class, and Gall Marshall and Lola Brown topped the under nine division.

All eight will be participating Saturday in Victoria's Highland Games at Royal Athletic Park and later in the month will be competing in games to be staged in Vancouver and Seattle.

The commission upheld the officer but suggested that in borderline cases it would be wiser to give a warning rather than a ticket.

Third complaint was received from a woman who rebelled at having to appear in court for driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

She pointed out that the ticket issued for the offense was court appearance can be avoided if the offender pays his fine at the traffic office within 48 hours.

City prosecutor Bigelow told the commission that the one-way offenders must appear in court by ruling of Magistrate H. C. Hall. He added that the magistrate wants to hear the circumstances in each case as he feels this violation "can cause accident to life and limb."

At present a screening board is interviewing applicants across Canada.

Traffic Fines May Be Paid At City Hall

Victorians will pay minor traffic fines at City Hall instead of the police station if a recommendation made by police commission today is adopted by council.

The recommendation was made after the police commission, headed by the mayor, conducted a full-dress investigation into two charges of non-courteous conduct by the traffic department. But in each case the officials involved were exonerated.

The commission cleared a woman clerk who was criticized by a man who came to the station to pay a ticket. He alleged in his complaint that the clerk refused his money. The woman held that the man was "beligerent" and said her instructions were that "anyone who kicked up a fuss be sent into court."

Heavy Nylon Work Socks
Require No Darning . . .

BY PENNY SAVER

Darning is a boring task, you'll agree. Luckily, with the nylon socks everyone's wearing now, the chore is not so great a one, for nylon seldom requires a darn.

But what about those women whose husbands wear heavy woolen work socks? Lightweight socks simply can't be worn under some types of work boots . . . even in summer, so the poor housewife spends hours repairing worn heels.

Heavyweight, nylon work socks are now being manufactured and they wear and wear and wear! They come in grey, with your choice of red or blue heels and toes. Price per pair is $1.15.

Your little girl would love to have a cotton duster housecoat for the summer, mother. You don't see them made for girls very often, but I know a store that carries an exceptionally fine line of small-size dusters.

Fabric is called gold nugget cotton. It is a finely woven, hard-wearing cotton, patterned with gold, which is guaranteed washable. And it has one of those three-way belts. You know, wear it fully belted, half belted or not belted at all.

In sizes eight to 14, the duster costs at $5.95. Background colors are peacock blue or Chinese red.

Just so's the little boys don't feel neglected, I'll tell about some hard to resist summer outfits. Once you see them, I know you'll want to buy your son one. The entire outfit is made of cotton drill of firm but fine texture. Shorts are navy. The top is a combination vest and short sleeve shirt. Vest is white with navy and red checks and the sleeves and collar of a sports shirt are sewn in to look like the real thing. Price, sizes two to three X is $2.98 and for sizes four to six X, $3.98.

Cherry Snow Ring

Sweet cherry snow ring is beautiful to look at and delicious to eat.

Before the season for sweet cherries ends, how about a beautiful looking snow ring. Emma States of Seattle gave it to us last week.

SWEET CHERRY SNOW RING

Two cups pitted dark sweet cherries, 2 pounds unpitted dark sweet cherries, stems on, 2 packages lemon-flavored gelatin, 2 cup boiling water, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1 cup cold water, 1 cup cream for whipping, 1/4 cup sugar.

Dissolve the gelatin in the boiling water. Add the lemon juice and cold water and refrigerate until partially set. Whip the cream and add the sugar. Fold into the gelatin. Add the pitted cherries and pour into a ring mold (3 1/2-cup size).

Refrigerate for at least 4 hours. Unmold on a large platter. Place washed and drained cherries in the centre around the outside. Garnish with garden leaves.

STEWED SWEET CHERRIES

Wash carefully without bruising. Remove stems. Either pit them or prick well. Cover with boiling water and simmer gently until nearly tender.

Add sugar to taste and a few drops of lemon juice. Simmer 3 or more minutes. Serve in glass dishes as a dessert or as a relish with meat.

AS WE LIVE

Sacrifice Is Wasted
If It's Not Wanted

By ELIZABETH R. HURLOCK, PhD

Sometimes a sister makes a big mistake when she sacrifices her life for her brother. I suspect that this is true of the young woman who writes:

(Q)—"Before my mother died two years ago, she asked me to keep home for my brother; who is a bachelor. He is 28 years old and I am 32. I work in an office and have a very responsible position. It is hard for me to do the housework all alone, and my brother never lifts a hand to help me. He isn't even agreeable when he is at home. I often feel that he would rather live elsewhere, but I promised my mother to keep the home and I feel it is my duty to keep my promise. What is your opinion?

(A)—My opinion is that your brother does not want you to keep the home going for him, but that he doesn't have the courage to tell you so. He is trying—in not a very kind way—to hint that he does not want to live with you but do not seem to take the hint.

Has it ever occurred to you that perhaps your brother would like to get married, but feels obligated to stay with you according to your mother's wish? I am sure, if she were alive today, she would reverse her stand on this matter—just as you should.

Why not ask your brother frankly what he would really like to do about the house? Explain to him that with your work at the office, you feel it is too much for you to carry the household work all alone, and that you had thought of moving to smaller quarters.

That will give him a chance to say whether he wants to come with you or would rather make other arrangements. If he has the thought of marriage in the back of his mind, this will give him the opportunity to tell you about it and urge you to make your own living arrangements.

His lack of appreciation for all you have done to make a home for him may stem from resentment at feeling tied down by you and the home. This is the time to set him free, if that is what he wants, and to free yourself of a burden you no longer should feel obligated to carry.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Even With Sacroiliac Trouble
Exercise May Be Beneficial

Many women suffer with sacroiliac trouble. This is usually due to an injury or fall or strain from lifting or from some other activity. Sometimes it is an aftermath of childbirth, but not often. It is certainly painful.

If you have this trouble, you must be very careful about the exercises you take. Those which are too strenuous and place too much strain on already weakened muscles can make the condition worse or even bring on your first attack.

SEEM TO HELP

However, there are exercises which are most helpful. I learned these long ago and have had many pupils who have mild sacroiliac trouble and find that this does not recur when they are faithful about doing the exercises I mention.

I have given these exercises here in this column but they are so helpful to so many people that I repeat them once in a while. Before taking them, ask your physician if he approves, because every individual condition is different, and I certainly want them to help rather than harm.

1. Stand tall. Bend the left knee up in front of you. Take hold of the left knee with the hands and pull upward gently. Return left foot to the floor. Do the same thing with your right knee. Continue slowly, alternating left and right.

Fashion Stakes at Ascot Won By Wife of Aga Khan

LONDON (CP) — The Aga Khan didn't win a race at the Royal Ascot meeting this year but his wife took the fashion stakes in a breeze.

The glamorous begum, who was Miss France of 1930, captured the vote hands down with her dazzling ensemble on Ladies' Day, third day of the annual four-day meeting. She wore a simple dress of white lace, the pattern picked out in embroidery, and trimmings all in the same color, from wide hat to lacy shoes.

"Why is it that one woman wins the Ascot fashion stakes year after year?" Eileen Ascot asks in the Evening Standard. The fashion secrets of the tall, striking brunette are elementary, she added. They include simplicity, plenty of black and white and only two pieces of clothing at a time.

The Queen's outfit on Ladies' Day was also in white lace, with the pattern picked out in the narrowest of lilac braiding. It had a wide-hemmed skirt, over many petticoats, that merely swayed enchantingly in gusty breezes.

Florence Chadwick's Day

Hi! A week-and-a-half of training and still no signs of Caddy. I wonder if sea monsters go south for their summer holidays?

Actually, I won't be too disappointed if I don't run into Caddy before I try the swim because I have just about had my fill of denizens of the deep interfering with my swims and practise swims.

The only way I like to see fish is browned to a crisp and served with a side order of cole slaw.

I have already mentioned the time when three sharks were shot near me during my Catalina swim. Believe me, a person could swear off fish for life after an experience like that.

But you should have been around Catalina one day when I was having a practise swim. My brother, Dick, was the only person with me and he was rowing a small boat while I was swimming.

I had my head low to the water and couldn't see much. All of a sudden Dick started shouting and jumping up and down in the boat. I stopped swimming because I thought maybe his boat had sprung a leak.

Just as I stopped swimming, I felt this strange pull in the water, as if I was in a whirlpool. I think I set a new speed record getting over to the boat and just as Dick hauled me over the side, a great big whale surfaced, right where I had been swimming.

The whale slapped the water with his flukes, almost upsetting the boat, blew great big cloud of vapor and slipped under the waves.

Right about then, I almost decided to go into the restaurant business.

The time I tried to swim, non-stop, from England to France and back to England, the citizens of the sea ganged up on me.

I made the coast of France and turned around for the return trip to England. I had covered about 2½ miles back when I ran into a school of little jelly fish. There must have been 50-trillion of them, about two inches across and they stung worse than a hive of cranky bumble-bees. I was just covered with stings and wells and had to quit because of them.

If Caddy stays on his side of the Bay I'll stay on mine.

Third Mental Patient Caught; 2 Still at Large

LANGSTAFF, Ont. (CP)—Vincent Lauzon, 24, described by police as a dangerous escaped mental patient, was re-captured today at Schomberg in this district 20 miles north of Toronto. Police continued a hunt for two other mental patients who escaped with him Monday night from the Ontario hospital at Langstaff.

Lauzon, believed the leader of the group and the most dangerous of the trio, was taken into custody at a Schomberg gas station.

Still at large and sought in swampy bushland were Victor Robert, 19, also considered dangerous, and William Elsie, 20, reported to be a harmless epileptic.

Earlier two others who escaped after an attendant at the hospital was slugged with a cribbage board were picked up near the institution.

May Give Up Hanoi

HANOI, Indo-China (UP)—French officials are discussing with the Communists the possibility that France will pull out of Hanoi if the Geneva conference reaches a cease-fire agreement, reliable sources said today.

Brandon Floods Recede

Victory was in sight today for men holding the last remaining emergency dikes at Brandon, Man., after Assiniboine River reached its peak at 22 feet two inches. Officials predicted the river would flow at the same level for four or five days at the most, unless further heavy rains occur in the western part of the province. In one of the worst floods on record, all but one section of Brandon's emergency diking system had been flooded and most homes had their cellars inundated. Crest of the flood was only eight inches below the peak of the disastrous flood of 1948. Above, two residents are seen traveling the street by canoe. At left, a young boy and his pet seek shelter on higher ground.

DULLES IN PARIS

Showdown' Talks Are Started With Premier of France

BY EDWARD M. KORRY

PARIS (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew to Paris today for dramatic showdown talks on Indo-China and the European army with French Premier Pierre-Mendes France.

Dulles arrived in Paris by plane at 1:55 p.m. (6:55 PDT). His arrival was accompanied by authoritative reports from London that the U.S. secretary of state will have Britain's full support on both Indo-China and the European Army plan.

Mendes-France, these sources said, sent a personal message to Dulles Monday, reaffirming his determination to achieve an honorable Indo-China settlement.

That assurance, they said, was what finally broke the United States' semi-boycott of the French premier's hasty peace campaign. But both Britain and the United States remained wary of any move that could be interpreted as a sell-out.

SEVEN POINTS

Authoritative French sources said Mendes-France has agreed to seven general conditions which President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill have said are necessary to an "honorable" Indo-China peace.

The seven points insisted upon by the two western allies were not disclosed, but authoritative sources said they bartered any Red takeover of Indo-China, kept open the possibility of an eventual peaceful unification of a democratic Viet Nam and demanded an effective international control system.

An informant said British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would stand with Dulles against the negotiation of a dishonorable peace in Indo-China. It was learned authoritatively, too, that Britain and the United States have agreed to grant sovereignty to West Germany if France refuses to ratify the European army agreement.

Dulles planned to get down to business with Mendes-France after a dinner scheduled to follow his arrival.

Lawyer T. E. H. Ellis, acting on behalf of a group of merchants, said today he will seek a court decision to upset a petition filed by department stores for a six-day store operation.

A petition by a majority of operators in any retail class is required before stores can stay open Wednesdays.

The petition by department stores has been cleared by city hall officials, and a by-law amendment to give them, and four other store classifications, the six-day week is scheduled to become operative next week.

Vancouver Will Get Tough In Forcing Gas Safety Law

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The city of Vancouver had orders today to take drastic steps to enforce its gas safety by-law, designed to curb domestic gas poisonings, of which there have been 42 here so far this year.

Council Monday endorsed a by-law amendment giving city officials power to order the gas supply shut off from premises where property owners refuse to allow inspections or violate the gas safety regulations.

On U.K. Suez Proposal Nasser Calls Cabinet

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser has called an extraordinary cabinet meeting for tonight to discuss Britain's new proposals for settling the Suez Canal zone dispute.

Informed sources said the latest British proposals for settlement of the dispute provide for the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt but with the British troops permitted to return to the canal zone in event of an emergency.

3 Children Drown, 3 Missing

Montreal (CP)—Three children were drowned, three were listed as missing and four others were rescued today when a pleasure boat overturned on the St. Lawrence River near Ille Bizard, about 20 miles northwest of Montreal.

Too Many Airlines in B.C., Says Pilot

Vancouver (CP)—Safety is being endangered by too many competing airlines flying the British Columbia coast, the air transport board was told today by a representative of the Canadian Airline Pilots' Association.

A. R. Eddie, managing director of the association, said: "It is up to the board to prevent the airline companies from committing economic suicide, and also actual suicide."

Vancouver Will Get Tough In Forcing Gas Safety Law

Vancouver (BUP)—The city of Vancouver had orders today to take drastic steps to enforce its gas safety by-law, designed to curb domestic gas poisonings, of which there have been 42 here so far this year.

Council Monday endorsed a by-law amendment giving city officials power to order the gas supply shut off from premises where property owners refuse to allow inspections or violate the gas safety regulations.

Meanwhile, Magistrate Thomas Dohm dismissed the first test case Tuesday as the city council met.

It is shutting one's eyes to reality in Asia," he said.

Brandon E. Brady was found guilty of failure to install safety devices in his rooming house when plumbing inspector Alexander Booth failed to test whether two suites in the house were used as sleeping quarters.

The by-law requiring installation of safety devices on gas appliances applies only to sleeping rooms.
